

I agree with the restructuring plan from RM-10867. I have been trying to learn morse code since 1973 with little to no success. I was able to get my ham ticket only when the no-code technician became available. I would like to be able to use the HF bands, but with the morse code requirements, that wouldn't be possible. I do agree that morse code is important for emergencies, but I see no real reason why the Phone subbands couldn't be opened to those who can't do code. Morse code doesn't prove you are a good operator. We have plenty of operators in my area that I don't consider as "Good Operators" that have the Morse code endorsement. That is a discussion for another time.

Thank you for your attention

Scott K Gwin, KE6WPP